

Academic wheel of privilege

命 > UKRIO Resources > Equality, Equity, Diversity and Inclusion > Academic wheel of privilege

The Academic Wheel of Privilege is based on twenty identity types spanning seven categories: living and culture, caregiving, education and career, gender and sexuality, race, health and wellbeing and childhood and development. These identity types are shown as circles connected to three concentric rings (outer, middle and inner) of "identity" circles with increasing privilege as you go towards the centre. The effect of the concentric rings makes it appear like a funnel – the closer you get to the centre the more you're likely to spiral into more privilege.

Reproduced under CC-BY Attribution 4.0 International from Elsherif, M. M., Middleton, S. L., Phan, J. M., Azevedo, F., Iley, B. J., Grose-Hodge, M., Tyler, S., Kapp, S. K., Gourdon-Kanhukamwe, A., Grafton-Clarke, D., Yeung, S. K., Shaw, J. J., Hartmann, H., & Dokovova, M. (2022). Bridging Neurodiversity and Open Scholarship: How Shared Values Can Guide Best Practices for Research Integrity, Social Justice, and Principled Education. MetaArXiv https://doi.org/10.31222/osf.io/k7a9p

To learn more on Equality, Equity, Diversity and Inclusion, please visit out resource page here.

UKRIO: Promoting good practice and preventing misconduct

Find us

UKRIO
Impact Hub London Euston
1 Triton Square
London NW1 3DX

Registered Charity No: 1147061 Registered Company No: 7444269

Quick Links

℃ Contact

y Twitter

in LinkedIn

■ YouTube

- Mastodon
- 1 About us
- Working and volunteering
- Newsletter
- Subscriber Log In Subscrib

Core UKRIO Guidance

Code of Practice for Research

Procedure for the Investigation of Misconduct in Research

Research Ethics Support and Review

Self-Assessment Tool for the Concordat to Support Research Integrity

Reporting research misconduct

Latest News

UKRIO issues joint statement and briefing document on the refreshed Concordat to Support Research Integrity

UKRIO to Launch New Research Integrity Online Training Course in Spring 2025

UKRIO Honours the Legacy of David Carpenter

Deadline Extended: Join our Workshops on Improving Authorship Practices

Sign up for our newsletter

Terms & Conditions

Privacy Policy & Cookies

Confidentiality Policy

Copyright @2025 | Ecommerce Website Packages Designed and Developed by OJM Digital Maintained and hosted by Henson IT Solutions Ltd